

Building Bridges for Global Youth Advocacy

Applicant: Hilai Barakzai

Description:

This project focuses on research and development to enhance youth engagement in global advocacy. The initiative includes a roundtable discussion with Bob Rae and U.S. State Department representatives to identify strategies for amplifying youth voices in policymaking.

This initiative is a research and development-focused project aimed at empowering youth to play an active role in global advocacy and policy making. By fostering meaningful dialogue between youth leaders and policymakers, the project seeks to create actionable strategies to amplify youth voices in decision-making processes.

Key components include:

1. Roundtable Discussions: Featuring Bob Rae and U.S. State Department representatives, these discussions will explore actionable solutions for youth empowerment in policy development.
2. Research & Reporting: A detailed report will be created based on insights gathered from the roundtable and additional stakeholder interviews, providing a roadmap for future youth engagement.
3. Media Outreach: Strategic campaigns on social media and traditional platforms will promote the project outcomes and encourage youth participation globally.
4. Follow-Up Engagement: The project will establish follow-up mechanisms to sustain momentum and ensure continued dialogue between youth leaders and policymakers.

Expected Outcomes:

1. A published report summarizing the roundtable findings and recommendations for enhancing youth engagement.
2. Increased visibility of youth voices in policymaking through media and marketing efforts.
3. Strengthened connections between youth leaders, policymakers, and international organizations.
4. A framework for sustained advocacy and collaboration in future youth-led projects.
